

Moody's reviews 38 European SME ABS deals for possible downgrade

Approximately EUR 22.6 billion of debt securities affected

Frankfurt, March 23, 2009 -- Moody's Investors Service has placed on review for possible downgrade the ratings of 163 classes of notes in 38 asset-backed securities (ABS) transactions backed by granular portfolios of loans to small and mid-sized enterprises (SME) in Europe. A detailed list of the rating actions can be found at the end of this press release.

Today's rating actions reflect Moody's revised anticipations for the performance of the European SME sector in the current down cycle. Specifically, Moody's has increased its probability of default (PD) assumption on SME pools across Europe to incorporate expectations that European SME default rates are likely to greatly exceed the levels observed in historical performance data. Moody's currently has a negative outlook for the European SME loan sector, which has increasingly shown signs of weakness in terms of credit performance. The sector is further stressed by the anticipated limited refinancing opportunities for EMEA non-financial corporate issuers rated Baa and below over the next six to 12 months.

On 17 March 2009, Moody's published a new Rating Methodology report, entitled: "Refining the ABS SME Approach: Moody's Probability of Default Assumptions in the Rating Analysis of Granular Small and Mid-Sized Enterprise Portfolios in EMEA". This is a refined approach in which Moody's first determines a country-specific base PD assumption for a pool of SMEs and then adjusts it for the securitised portfolio quality (e.g. originator's underwriting quality/data, borrower size/industry, loan characteristics, etc.) and macro-economic factors (cycle adjustments). Moody's started to introduce this top down approach towards the end of 2007, to complement any pool-specific information (such as past performance data and internal scoring systems) used to derive the pool PD assumption of SME ABS pools. This approach has further been refined over time and has led to an increase in PD assumptions in SME loan transactions rated since end-2007.

Until then, the two main sources of information available to Moody's to determine the PD assumption on SME pools had been historical data and internal scoring systems/transition matrices, especially in the two major SME securitisation markets: Spain and Germany. However, the available historical data (including transition matrices) usually only covers a short period (less than six years) and thus does not allow an accurate assessment of the average creditworthiness of the SME portfolio across a business cycle that includes a very severe recession. At the same time, limited information is sometimes provided on internal rating systems and large differences can be observed in PD estimates for similar portfolios in the same country.

To reflect its revised approach and increased PD expectations, Moody's has considered all 79 outstanding SME ABS transactions initially rated before 2008 (and, in very limited instances, transactions rated in 2008 while the approach was being further refined).

Moody's has placed on review for possible downgrade the notes in all 38 transactions exposed to assets in countries or industrial sectors for which Moody's has increased its PD assumptions and that have not yet built material additional credit enhancement or that do not benefit from other off-setting factors (such as a government guarantee). Moody's applied the same approach when it put the notes in two UK transactions on review for possible downgrade on 17 February 2009.

While Moody's expects transactions affected by today's rating actions to see their performance deteriorate over time as reflected in its revised PD assumptions, to date these transactions have typically performed in line with Moody's initial expectations. In contrast, Moody's previously placed the ratings on most of the Notes in 18 Spanish SME ABS deals under review for possible downgrade, the performance of which had already started to deteriorate significantly. Moody's will incorporate its revised approach on PD assumptions in the review process of these Spanish deals.

Moody's expects that the SME ABS transactions affected by today's rating action could experience a one to two notch rating migration on some Aaa-rated notes, and larger rating migrations through the rest of the capital structure. The outcome of the review process for these transactions will be based on a detailed analysis of each transaction's specific collateral and structural features, a review of the asset correlation and recovery assumptions, taking into account any information provided by the servicers in addition to their regular investor reports (e.g. loan-by-loan information).

In a separate rating action, on 13 March, Moody's also placed on review for possible downgrade the ratings of notes in 20 European collateralised debt obligation (CDO) transactions backed by generally non-granular portfolios of SMEs. These rating actions reflected the revision of certain key assumptions that the rating agency uses to rate and monitor SME CDO transactions. These revised assumptions are described in greater detail in the press release titled "Moody's updates key assumptions for rating corporate synthetic CDOs" published on 15 January 2009.

In some instances, Moody's revised assumptions for SME CDO transactions may also apply to SME ABS transactions. In particular, when assessing credit risk for the less granular SME ABS transactions, or those with significant debtor or industrial sector concentrations, the rating agency's new correlation assumptions may be considered, which could lead to additional rating actions or affect the migration for ratings currently on review.

Moody's ratings address the expected loss posed to investors by the legal final maturity of the notes. Moody's ratings address only the credit risks associated with the transaction. Other risks have not been addressed, but may have a significant effect on yield to investors.

The principal methodology that Moody's uses in assessing and monitoring the ratings of SME ABS is described in the Rating Methodology report for granular SME transactions in EMEA: "Refining the ABS SME Approach: Moody's Probability of Default Assumptions in the Rating Analysis of Granular Small and Mid-Sized Enterprise portfolios in EMEA", published on 17 March, 2009 and "Moody's Approach to Rating Granular SME Transactions in Europe, Middle East and Africa", published in October 2006, which can be found at www.moody.com under the "Ratings Methodologies & Performance" section.
